Since our last collection, Google has changed branding from Android Wear to Wear OS, and there are finally devices on the market that contain the new Snapdragon 3100 chip, which allows for more features, like a visible second hand when ambient mode. While I'm sure wear OS progress isn't moving as fast as enthusiasts would like, there's no discussion that the platform isn't dead yet. So if you're looking for some cute new and faces for your Wear OS device, you've come to the right place. Apps Wear quick settings Reaching many of the The settings on your Wear OS watch can be painful, but luckily Wear Quick Settings makes it easy to sleep through the most commonly used settings from a single screen. So if you want to change wi-fi/bluetooth, open the media volume, open screen settings, turn down apps, or open a few app shortcuts. Wear Quick Settings will do the job with ease. Monetization: $1.99/ad-free/no IAPs Wear/mouse is a handy app that can turn your Wear OS display into a touchpad that functions as a remote mouse input. The app supports any desktop, laptop or Android TV device, as long as they support Bluetooth. If you've ever found yourself in a situation where a physical mouse isn't available, and you happen to be constantly dealing with a Wear OS device, this app should be very convenient. Monetization: Free/Ad-free/IAP-free The developer app has more than a few apps in today's Wear OS review, the first being called Altimeter for Wear OS. It's described as a precise barometric altimeter app, and while I wouldn't go as far as to call this release precise, it offers your current elevation. Unfortunately, the free version of the app only provides this measurement in the feet. Monetization: Free/featuring $1.49 ads/IASs - $14.99 The Wear OS compass is a standalone app that includes a watch face that includes a compass that can easily be displayed on your device's outer ring. You can also use this app to show the compass as a complication on any watch face you choose to use. You can also use this release to see the current direction of the sun and moon. Monetization: Free/contains $1.49-$14.99 ads/IADs Luckily Appfour has done everyone a favor by naming their apps in a way that leaves little question about what functionality each app will provide. The GPS Tracker for Wear OS is obviously a smartwatch app that can track your GPS, but what you may not know is that the app can also be used as a watch face as well as complications on other faces. Monetization: Free/featuring $1.49-$14.99 Ads/IAS of all appfour titles in this review. The Wear OS Stopwatch is the one I use the most. Having a stopwatch available on your wrist can come in handy more than you'd think, and the fact that you can run it as a standalone app, complications and as a watch face means you won't have to fight a tiny app launcher every time you want to get access to a timer. Monetization: Free/featuring $1.49-$14.99 Wear OS Ad/IAS is a nifty tool that can show your current speed no matter what you do. This is reasonably true, and you can even see your past speeds in the chart, as well as on the layout of the map. Unfortunately, these two features will cost you, so don't expect such functionality in the free version of this release. Monetization: Free/featuring listings/IASs from $1.49 - $14.99 For Wear OS, integrate all previous apps into one unique app and watch face. This means that Add an altimeter, accelerometer, GPS tracker, stopwatch and compass complications to a smooth AI, all so you can easily access them from one place. Monetization: Free/contains $4.49-$14.99 Ads/IADs: Transferring files to a Wear OS device can be painful, but thanks to the recently released Nav Explorer app, you can transfer your data wirelessly with ease. The app works via Bluetooth and WiFi, and even binds to several more of the company's Wear OS apps for ease of compatibility. Monetization: free/contains $4.49-$14.99 ads/IASs If you're in hip design instead of easy-to-read faces, then Mr Jones Watches - Last Laugh Tattoo Little Labs should be in your alley. The face depicts a colorful Calavera, and time is indicated on the teeth of the skull. The top row displays the hours, and the bottom row shows the minute. While I wouldn't say a face is completely unhearsable, it can be hard to tell the time at first sight. This is obviously an edition that's more for the show than the function. Monetization: $1.99/ad-free/no IAPs Mr Jones Watches - The Decider is another smooth release from Little Labs. Circling the outside of the face are squares depicting the words yes or no. The idea behind this design is that if you look at your watch, it will make your decisions for you through a simple yes or no answer. It's a bit like a magic ball of eight in that regard, so if you're the type of person who has trouble deciding, then this is the face for you. Monetization: $1.99/ad-free/IAPs-free AVI-8 - The Hawker Hurricane AV-4011-0H watch face from Little Labs is clearly an airline face with its dials, colors and graphics calling back to the British single-seat fighter jet. The face is compatible with all Wear OS devices, and will certainly look great on any device that has a stylish leather strap. Monetization: $1.99/ad-free/IAPs-free AVI-8 - The Hawker Hunter AV4052-07 hour number is another aviation-themed release from Little Labs. Unlike hawker hurricanes, this face offers a bluish theme reminiscent of the Hawker Hunter instrument panel and cockpit. Monetization: $1.99/ad-free/no IAPs GRR - COLORS gives a very 80s Trapper Keeper vibe with its blue background and neon paint splash. This face supports complications, steps, themes, analog/digital watches, as well as round and square clocks. So if you're looking for a stylish face that screams you grew up in the '80s, GRR - COLORS is it. Monetization: free/ad-free/no IAPs Developer: Little Labs, Inc. Price: Free stop, breathing and thinking offers a cute face and is compatible with all Wear OS watches. The core design shows a cloud-like face, but there's also a feature attached to it. If you touch your face, a circle will appear, and if you breathe time with a pulsating sphere, you should be able to relax, hence the name of this release. Monetization: free / ad-free / no IAPs LAZARUS - Event Horizon is striking from Little Labs. Half the screen is red and the other half is black, and the whole thing is animated so that the two sides rotate as if they were your other hand. The face is easy to read thanks to its large numbers and uncluttered design, and is also completely free to use. Monetization: Free/ad-free/no IAPs Vaporwave themes have become somewhat popular in recent years. There are a lot of backgrounds that are dedicated to this '80s-like theme, and now we have a Wear OS face that matches the outrun arcade game, which happens to be another nickname relating to the style of music from which this genre of art has evolved. Monetization: free/ no ads / no IAPs Dalpek is another face from Little Labs that contains an interesting design. The hours and minutes shown are slightly larger than what the Wear OS display can hold, which makes for a very artistic look that is still easy to read. After artistic design, you can expect support for complications, themes, as well as square and round clocks. Monetization: free / no ads / no IAPs Little Labs' GRR - AUTUMN watch face definitely contains the appropriate colors that come to mind when thinking about the autumn season. Brown, red, green and orange lines form a pattern of the face, and time is told through analogue hands instead of digital numbers. The face supports complications, as well as square and round clocks. Monetization: Free/Ad-Free/No IAPs Developer: Little Labs, Inc. Price: Free Dalpek - Modern Dalpek is another striking face that goes all-in on a black-and-red theme, much like LAZARUS - Event Horizon face. Of course, this edition contains a much more cartoon theme with its rounded numbers and white on black minutes. The face supports complications and themes, as well as rounded and square clocks.
